The National Front Says:

HANG I.R.A. BOMBERS!

A SICKENING ORGY of IRA terror plagued Britain and the British people during the month of August. The dismembered bodies of British soldiers filled our television screens and newspapers as their families in Britain experienced first hand the pain and grief the people of Ulster have suffered for years.

The Tory Government do nothing but hold meetings and wring their hands. They send their condolences to the families of the murdered soldiers but do nothing to stop the carnage that leaves all families of British servicemen serving in Ulster living in fear.

The National Front has the answer to I.R.A. terrorism in Ulster. Hang the IRA bombers. Make sure that captured IRA bombers, never, ever, bomb again.

Mrs Thatcher says that such action will lead to IRA martyrs. If that is true then so be it. Let them have their martyrs, be it ten, twenty, fifty or a hundred. The more martyrs the less the martyrdom. Sooner or later the IRA will think twice before they cause their carnage.

Hanging the IRA bombers would be part of National Front Ulster policy that would stem IRA violence once and for all. Gerry Adams and his Sinn Fein supporters condone the violence. For that they should be kept behind bars until they renounce it. Pro-IRA groups on the mainland should be banned and their members who actively raise money for the IRA murder gang arrested.

Democracy is the will of the people. It is the will of the people of Ulster to be British. The National Front is the only political party that is prepared to protect the democratic rights of the people of Ulster.

To protect those democratic rights you must stand up to the mob. You must stand up to the IRA bombers and fight their fire with fire. Weakness and appeasement are the fuel that keep the IRA fires burning. Hang the IRA bombers and the flames of terrorism in Ulster will be put out once and for all time.

HOW MANY MORE MUST DIE?

• Yet another victim of the IRA is buried. How many more must die before the Government unleashes the might of the British Army on the terrorists?

FRONT'S ROLE FOR ULSTER

THE DECLARED aim of the IRA is to kill enough people, enough soldiers, enough civilians to persuade the British people that it would be easier to pull British troops out of Ulster and give the IRA a chance to take over.

Their strategy is clever and and well though out. They have seen how the British people, and more importantly how the British politicians, react to pressure from organised terrorism. In India, in Rhodesia, in Israel and in numerous African countries a campaign of terrorism resulted in British Governments handing over countries to terrorist leaders.

The murderers of the IRA have learnt this lesson. They believe, and with good reason, that if they can increase the level of violence sufficently, then an increasing number of politicans will opt for the easy way out and will wash their hands of Ulster.

Everyone who gives the situation in Ulster a moment's thought will realise that any such abrogation of duty in this part of the United Kingdom will lead to a bloodbath. However from the Westminster politicians point of view the problem will no longer concern them, they would wring their hands in anguish, call for United Nations action, and secretly feel relieved that they had managed to rid themselves of a problem even though they had robbed Britain of her pride, her unity and of some of her most loyal people. Whether such a course of action would result in a unitary Irish state is extremely doubtful. The loyalist people of Northern Ireland would rightly resist and the more than likely end would be some form of independent state.

The British people of England, Scotland and Wales would feel unhappy about such a course of action but this will be of no practical help unless there is a focus for their feelings.

HOLDING ALOFT OUR NATIONAL FLAG

• NF Demonstrators: Putting pressure on the politicians.

On Saturday 6th August a demonstration of assorted communist groups marched through North London in support of the call to pull out of Ulster - just one week after the bombing of the Inglis Barracks in Mill Hill only a few miles away.

The National Front counter-demonstration showed that there is an increasing number of ordinary British people in England who are not looking for an easy way out. Instead they are looking to see who is in the right in this situation. By holding aloft our national flag and banners we are able to stir the natural patriotic sentiments of many ordinary people. In turn this will apply pressure to those politicians who waver in their attitude to Ulster.

This is an important role for the National Front for any cracks in our national unity must be staved off until a patriotic goverment is elected when any such threat will be eliminated for ever and the IRA will be crushed once and for all.

EAST ANGLIAN ACCESS FOR ILLEGAL ALIENS

• The day the British people become a minority in their own country is rapidly approaching.

IN 1987 2,200 illegal immigrants were detained trying to enter Britain. But according to immigration officials this figure is only a tiny proportion of the illegal immigrants who actually gain entry to Britain.

Among the latest of the illicit roads to Britain to be spotlighted is the East Anglian coast where customs officiers believe hundreds of immigrants are being dropped by small coasters. The unattended ports are providing an easy access to Britain for the aliens who in many cases are unloaded at unattended wharves and just walk to the nearest town.

A spokesman for the immigration officials said it was scandalous that they were so understaffed in the region. There were only 14 immigration officials to cover Felixstowe and Ipswich with another 32 at Harwich and only two at Great Yarmouth.

Burying its head in the sand as usual was the Home Office who denied there was a problem. A spokesman said, "Immigration service resources, which have increased in recent years, are proving more and more succesful in securing apprehensions of the people here, or seeking entry here, illegally".

With Government allowed immigration, with illegal immigration, with the booming Asian birth-rate and the lessening British birth-rate, the day the British people become a minority in their own country is rapidly approaching.

Buy British for Your Baby!

BOOTS THE Chemist is cashing in on cheap third-world labour to increase its profits.

Baby's rattles, made in Taiwan, are being sold by the firm for 99p despite complaints from parents that the rattle tends to break when shaken.

52,000 issues of this garbage have been sold by Boots. It's a scandal that such foreign rubbish is being sold by a so-called British firm. The National Front says "All baby rattles bought in Britain should be made in Britain, in British factories by British workers!".

BLACK SPOT IN THE FOREST

THE ROYAL Forest of Dean in Gloucestershire, one of Britain's most picturesque spots is to be ravaged by British Coal. They intend to open a large-scale open-cast mine at a site at Parkend, near Lydney.

So while the mining villages in the North face extinction as their livlihood is shut down by British Coal, the beauties of the Forest of Dean are to be ruined by a project that will produce just 200,000 tons of coal and employ just 50 men. It all goes to show the government cares nothing for either the quality of life in the mining villages of northern Britain or the environment in southern Britain.

More Asian Immigrants

MORE UNWANTED immigrants from Asia have arrived in Britain this year.

It's varoa jacobsini a lethal mite from South-East Asia which is a parasite that lives off the blood of honey bees. Already five swarms of bees have had to be destroyed in Britain this year.

Mr Michael Solley, secretary of the Bee Keepers' Association, said "If this spread then colonies could be decimated and I have no doubt that honey production could be badly effected".

SINKING SOAP'S SODOMY

SHIRTLIFTER MICHAEL Cashman of EastEnders believes that he can promote the cause of the bleeding-bottom-brigade through his role in the TV soap.

He wants to be suffering from AIDS in the programme because he believes that it would create sympathy for queers. A spokesman for the programme said "Michael believes very strongly that popular soaps like EastEnders can be used to educate people".

However the British people appear to think differently. Since a disgusting scene appeared where Cashman was kissing his on-screen lover barrow-boy Barry, which provoked a storm of protest from viewers with BBC switchboards jammed with complaints, the ratings have plumetted.

Now EastEnders looks like being overtaken by Neighbours, the Australian soap, where all the cast are White and there's NO WOOFTERS!

'Greenhouse Effect' hits the Thames Barrier

• Thames Barrier must be heightened in the next five to ten years.

A DIRECT result of the 'Greenhouse effect', the trapping of the sun's heat by the pollution in the atmosphere, has sent alarm bells ringing in the Thames Water Authority.

The so-often ignored words of warning from Britain's environmentalists rang very true last month when it was announced that the Thames Flood Barrier which protects London against the North Sea would have to be substantially strengthened because of the global 'greenhouse effect'.

Ocean levels are rising as much as a third of an inch every year as the ice caps melt. The burning of coal and oil and the destruction of the world's forests, releasing carbon dioxide into the atmosphere is trapping the sun's heat and raising global temperatures.

A spokesman for the Thames Water Authority said "We shall have to produce a plan within five or ten years to heighten the barrier if present scientific evidence is confirmed".

While the doubts over nuclear power mean that coal and oil burning would have to continue, a halt to the destruction of the worlds forests could be implemented immediately.

Big business concerns are destroying our forests for the sole purpose of making money. Governments have been warned time and time again by environmentalists about the effects of the deforestation programme, but they choose to offer a deaf ear while their palms are greased by fat backhanders from the bankers.

The National Front pledges to stop the destruction of Britain's forests and use all its influence to persuade other governments to do the same. The warnings of the environmentalists have gone unheeded for too long. It is only when direct results of the 'Greenhouse effect' such as the problems faced at the Thames Flood Barrier come to light the seriousness of the situatior is realised.

Suicide of our Car Industry

THE TORY Government is aiding and abetting the suicide of Britain's car industry.

Apart from allowing car imports to flood the British market and encouraging the setting up of Japanese car manufactureres in Britain, the Government has now given the all clear for Nissan to set set up a design centre in Sunderland to aid their assault on the British car industry.

To add insult to injury a fifth column of British car stylists will be employed by Nissan to head the assault.

British stylists now rank as the best in the world. They are the key people at Ford, Audi-Volkswagen in Germany, Volvo in Sweden and even in top Italian design firms.

It is a disgrace that they are not working in Britain for British car firms. The export of such expertise would be banned by a National Front Government along with the import of foreign cars into Britain and the setting up of foreign firms within Britain.

TORIES STAB BRITAIN'S SPACE PROGRAMME IN THE BACK

Yanks Ready to Pounce as the Government discards the Hotol Project

British Expertise up for grabs!

THE GOVERNMENT seems absolutely determined to kill the revolutionary Hotol space shuttle project designed by Alan Bond.

British Areospace conducted proof-of-concept studies of the Hotol engine with Rolls Royce and these tests were highly successful. However Mr Kenneth Clarke, then Minister for Trade and Industry, refused any further funding for this important project.

Instead he said that international collaboration should be sought. This was particularly clever of him because the engine is classified as secret by the Ministry of Defence and thus any such international collaboration is almost impossible.

• Has Hotol significant military potential?

Perhaps more important is the fact that the Ministry of Defence thought it necessary to classify it as sercet in the first place. This clearly implies that the project has significant military potential.

Presumably, once again, Britain will end up letting a British invention be developed by the Americans and then we will have to pay through the nose to buy the end product which will still probably have to remain, like Cruise Missiles, under American control.

RIOT ALERT!

AMBULANCEMEN In Berkshire are being trained in snatch-rescue techniques to deal with attacks from rioters.

Four-man support teams, capable of 'snatching' bodies from a crowd and carrying them away for treatment, are being recruited and put through physical fitness programmes.

The warnings last month of inner-city violence together with these new training techniques point to the fact that the Government is acknowledging what the National Front has been telling them for years - the multi-racial socety isn't working.

1992: The Year Britain Becomes an Industrial Wasteland

BIG BUSINESS in Britain is preparing to move out its manufacturing base to a more central situation in Europe in preparation for 1992.

The latest figures show that in the first seven months of this year British business spent £1,300 million in buying French companies. This compares with a total of £416 million for the whole of 1987.

It is now becoming increasingly clear that the large (and expensive) publicity campaign in the newspapers and on television which is trying to convince us that the dropping of trade barriers in 1992 will be an economic miracle, is a complete fraud.

Countries like Japan and Korea will benefit because they will be able to sell standardised products throughout the market. Countries like France and Germany will benefit to a limited extent because they are situated in the centre of this new economic unit. But a country like the United Kingdom will be relegated to a de-industrialised fringe area only to be kept alive by subsidies decided upon at the discretion of the French and Germans.

If this horrendous plan goes through then it seems certain that Mrs Thatcher will not be remembered as the Iron Lady, but as the destroyer of British Industry.

MAKING MONEY OUT OF MILLS'S MISERY

IT'S SICK that people are making money out of the Great Train Robbery. Books by Ronald Biggs, a musical and a film are glorying in the 25 year anniversary of the mail train robbery in Buckinghamshire.

Jack Mills the driver of the train was repeatedly cosned into semi-consiousness as he tried to stop the robbery. His speech was badly impaired and he had difficulty walking. His life was ruined and he died seven years after the attack with all to show for his resistance a cheque for 25 guineas from British Rail and £250 from the Post Office.

Many of the train robbers returned to a life of crime after serving their sentences, including involvement in the drugs trade. Giving them film-star status makes a nonsense of the adage 'crime doesn't pay'.

But sickest of all is the fact that next month the Prince and Princess of Wales will attend the royal premiere of a film about Buster Edwards one of the robbers. So much for the memory of the brave Jack Mills!

NATIONAL FRONT activists in South-West London have launched a campaign to stop the Notting Hill Carnival.

Posters supporting the NF campaign have been put up all over the Kensington area and have prompted a favourable response from the beleaguered white residents who live in fear and dread of the annual orgy of mugging, mayhem and murder that the carnival always brings.

DONT' PAY NO UNION DUES

• Bob and Paul Nash: hounded by a clique of fanatics

THE CIVIL Servants Union the CPSA has expelled National Front member Paul Nash.

After appearing to be satisfield to wait until the national conference the union made an about turn and pushed through the expulsion. The action has prompted Paul Nash to examine the possibility of taking the Union to court to claim back the union dues he has paid for the last ten years.

He told The FLAG,

"They have expelled me for being a member of the National Front. I have been a member of the National Front for as long as I have been a member of the CPSA so presumably they have been taking my union fees under false pretences."

The union have now turned their attention to Paul's brother Robert another Civil Servant of over ten years standing to try to get him expelled.

The campaign against the Nash brothers just shows how far down the road of totalitarianism the CPSA has travelled. It is a disgrace that two civil servant who have twenty years loyal service between them can be hounded by a tiny clique of fanatics who have taken control of the Civil Servants Union.

ULSTER: Time to take the Gloves off

Stourbridge Paper Sale

A HOT August Saturday saw the 2nd West Midlands Regional paper sale in the Black Country town of Stourbridge.

Over 20 members of Birmingham and Dudley branches of the NF converged on the town centre moving on a small contingent of Labour Party paper sellers.

The NF members received a warm welcome from the people of Stourbridge - selling over 60 paper an hour and distributing more than 1500 Drugs Kill and Stand by Loyal Ulster leaflets.

NOT NF OPINION

THE FARCE of this Government's so-called immigration policies was revealed in Parliament just before the summer recess when Labour's Deputy Leader, Roy Hatterley, accused Tory Minister of State, Tim Renton of promoting the opinions of the National Front.

Such harsh words came about because of new 'hard line' Tory moves to stop 25 women a year arriving from the sub-continent of India.

For the record, Mr Hattersley, the NF would stop all immigrants arriving from the Indian sub-continent, not just 25 a year, and on top of that we would send all coloured immigrants living in Britain back to their country of ethnic origin.

Tim Renton has not voiced National Front opinions. He has voiced the weak and pathetic Tory efforts to hoodwink the British people into the belief that they are stopping immigration.

Beer Drinkers over a Barrel

NF Calls for break-up of Big Six!

THE GREAT British beer rip-off goes on, with the 'Big Six' brewers who have a strangle hold on the trade whacking in swingeing price rises during August even though they are raking in record profits.

Bass, Britain's biggest brewers, put 4-6p on a pint. At the same time it reported pre-tax profits of £120 million in its last half year, a rise of a third on the previous six month's profits. Ind Coope, owned by the giant Allied-Lyons combine, stuck the price of its pints up by 2-3p a pint on August 22nd, to cash in on the improvement in drinking hours. Allied-Lyons notched up a 28% increase in profits last year to £436 million.

No sooner had independent brewers Matthew Brown and Theakstons - of 'Old Peculiar' fame - fallen into the clutches of Big Six combine Scottish and Newcastle, in a £186 million takeover, than up went their beer prices by 6p. S & N's profits had already gone up by 25% to £113 million.

Another of the Gang of Six, Whitbreads, not only raised their ale prices despite an 18% rise in profits beforehand to £187 million. They also tried to put the squeeze on tenanted pubs, whose landlords have a lease from the company and otherwise run the business themselves, by putting up their prices by 4p whilst keeping the increase down to a mere 1p in managed pubs where the "landlord" is simply a company employee, a hired manager.

In sharp contrast, small independent brewers, whose beer is generally much better anyway, tried to keep down their prices. A leading independent, noted London Real Ale brewers Youngs of Wandsworth, published an exact breakdown of where the price of one of their pints goes, something the big combines dare not do because their gross profiteering would be revealed. Only 10% of the price of a Young's pint goes on any form of profit, out of which tax, share dividends and loan interest must be paid. 18% goes on the exhorbitant beer duty levied by the Government and the Common Market (10p of the 83p average British pint's price goes in V.A.T. to Brussels).

Whilst the small brewers give value for money with a reasonable profit, the Big Six simply rip-off the British beer drinker. They use their overwhelming market share to squeeze the market for all it is worth, and to create ludicrous regional imbalances in beer prices.

A pint of independently-brewed ale in Dudley, in the West Midlands, costs 68p. A pint of Big Six fizz in London costs £1.30. yet both pints cost exactly the same to brew - in fact the Big Six pint, brewed in vast oil refinery-type beer plants using cheap chemicals and potato peelings etc. instead of general traditional ingredients, may well be appreciably cheaper to brew - yet it crosses the bar at almost twice the price.

This is simply exploitation of the British drinker. The extortion and profiteering of the Big Six beer combines clearly proves the National Front's point that such giant plutocratic combines are bad for everyone. Their workforce, who are reduced to mere powerless cogs in a giant machine, and their customers, who are squeezed dry, paying higher prices for inferior goods.

The NF is a small brewers support group, and NF members and supporters should remember this when choosing where to drink. We demand a ban by the monopolies commission on any more gobbling up of independents by the Big Six, together with a break up of this combine with their breweries (Bass alone has 13) sold off to their workforces.

In an industry made up of competing, fiercely independent small brewers, each proudly maintaining the traditions of its area and local community, Britons will at least be assured of a decent pint of proper beer at a reasonable price.

THE DEAD SEA IN ISRAEL

The Dead Sea in Israel is below sea level surrounded by mountains and sandy hills. It is always getting. getting water as several rivers flow into it. It never gives anything. Only gets.

I know a man who suffers from drepression. Why, because he is always getting in life. From the moment he wakes up to the moment he goes to sleep he is out to get something without giving. The fact is that he has nothing to give. He is as dead as the Dead Sea. That's the reason why he is depressed.

Some people join the National Front for what they can get out of it. When they realise they will get nothing material out of it they drift away. There are two things people will get out of the National Front. The joy of having something real to give to a party that is standing up for Britain and the British people and the joy of being part of that Party, watching it grow and knowing that you are playing a part in defending your race, culture and heritage.

So don't be like the Dead Sea in Israel, only getting things from others. Show that you really have something worthwhile to give the National Front.

BATTLE OF HOLLOWAY

32 Arrests as NF confronts I.R.A.

A MARCH by the ironically named Irish Freedom Movement each August usually attracts barely 200-300 assorted communists. However this year the march attracted nearer 700 after receiving substantial publicity as it came in the wake of the IRA bombing of the Inglis Barracks in Mill Hill, North London.

Just four days prior to the march a decision was taken by the National Front Executive to mount a counter demonstration to this openly pro-IRA march. In the few days leading up to the march a number of Tory MPs whined that the march should be banned - ignoring the fact that it is the same Tory MPs who have consistently refused to pass legislation outlawing IRA support groups who pass funds on to the republican murderers.

On Saturday 6th August the pro-IRA march left Islington Town Hall to wind its way through some sympathetic areas of North London. As they proceeded a steadily increasing number of hecklers accompanied the march and several violent confrontations took place. As the marchers approached the rally site in Whittington Park, Holloway they came up against a large counter-demonstration of National Front members and other patriots.

While the marchers chanted 'I-I-I.R.A.' they were met with renderings of 'Rule Britannia' and 'Smash, Smash, Smash the IRA'. Several patriotic young Britons were so incensed by the IRA marchers that they broke through the police cordon and attacked the march. Although some were arrested, they were mainly charged with minor offences, rather than anything more serious - perhaps in recognition of the fact that even the police didn't like having to police a pro-terrorist, pro-murderers march.

The counter demonstration of about 100 patriots gained national coverage on television, radio and the newspapers.

Once again the only political party to organise direct opposition to the IRA marchers was the National Front. Only the National Front says "Ban all organisations that give direct help to terrorist organisations such as the IRA.

NEW NF LINE-UP LEADS PARTY INTO 1990s

A NEW National Front team was elected at the August meeting of the National Directorate of the National Front that took place at a central London hotel on Saturday 20th August 1988.

In a pre-amble to the elections, National Front chairman since January 1986, Martin Wingfield, said that the time had come for the NF to step up a gear. "The holding operation that had existed over the last two and half years has seen the National Front over its worst period in the party's history. Now the time has come to launch the party into its biggest ever recruitment drive." He told the Directorate;

"We are like a second division football club that has gained promotion to the first division, to compete at this higher level we need a new, positive line-up that is not only capable of holding its own but has aspirations for the championship".

Martin Wingfield said he was standing down from the chairmanship of the National Front to concentrate on the production and promotion of the NF's monthly newspaper, The FLAG; " The vehicle", he said, "that will carry the National Front into the forefront of the political arena in Britain today"

He proposed Ian Anderson, National Front Chairman during the NF's growth years of 1984-85, as the chairman to lead the NF into the 1990s. Martin Wingfield accepted the position as Deputy Chairman.

• Ian Anderson: NF Chairman

John Hill, West Midlands Regional organiser, was acknowledged for the work he had done over the past two years. He was elected to the position of National Activities Organiser. Reflecting the growth of the NF in the Midlands, the movement of this department was in line with the Directorate commitment to build the NF from a firm base. The Midlands will now take over as the central area for the party playing host to many of the NF's major activities.

Other changes included the election of Vanguard editor, Tom Acton, to head the Education & Training Department and Steve Brady to the Policy Department.

Paul Nash takes over the Elections Department, Martin Wingfield the Branch Liaison and Publicity Departments while Tina Denny remains in charge of Central Administration.

• Martin Wingfield

Ian Taylor is in charge of the Patriots' Defence Fund with Ian Anderson heading a new department designed to stimulate NF growth in London.

The changes are a positive step forward by the party in the light of the public's renewed interest in the National Front. The Administration officer had reported inquiries for membership running at the highest ever within the last 30 months and the securest financial position ever known by the party, with donations, including one for £500, and memberships coming in regularly.

The new NF Directorate line-up will be presented to the National Front's Annual General Meeting on September 10th in London. A Directorate more committed, more positive and even more determined to see the National Front grow to a major force in British politics.

ONE FOR THE BIRDS!

AFTER EURO-beer, Euro-food, Euro-weights-and-measures and a host of other bureaucratic Euro-standards, Common Market madness now brings you the Euro-bird.

In place of traditional British birds like jays and hedge sparrows there will in future be 'acorn jays' and 'hedge accentors' The robin under new Euro-rules will be officially known as the 'European Robin'.

Ravens, starlings, chaffinches, kestrels, moorhens pheasants and even nightingales will in future be preceeded by the word Common in their new European Standard Names. The commonest bird in Britain, the blackbird, was going to be renamed the 'black thrush' by the crazed Eurocrats but in the end thanks to vigorous protests common sense more-or-less prevailed. It will be the Common Blackbird instead.

Dr. Alan Knox, a senior ornithologist with the British Museum, protested that "Many birdwatchers see no need for these changes because many of the British names are viewed as part of our cultural heritage. Some of them go back a long way and it would be very sad to see them go. Some are very pretty and expressive names, particularly to country people".

Changing the birds' names is an utterly pointless exercise. Like all living creatures birds each have their own internationally recognised scientific name - the blackbird is Turdus merula and the robin Erithacus rubecula for example - so there is no danger of confusion anyway.

But when did common sense, let alone national traditions, ever stop a standard-crazed Eurocrat? They're all cuckoo over there anyway . . .

NF Farm Policy would save Warbler

INTENSIVE FARMING methods have destroyed the natural habitat of one of Britain's songbirds.

The Marsh Warbler, whose main nesting ground was Worcestershire is in danger of becoming extinct - only eight pairs are thought to remain in Britain.

Mr. Andrew Fraser of the Worcestershire Natural Conservation Trust said that the cause of the problem was that the most suitable nesting sites had been drained and ploughed up because of the intensification of farming.

The NF policy of encouraging small family run farms which work together with the environment rather than destroying it would ensure the survival of the Marsh Warbler. Let's hope the British people don't leave it too late!

Nowhere to hang your Hat!

A LOBBY to me always used to be somewhere I had hung my cap and satchel when I arrived at school. It was a sort of unimportant non-descript little alcove off the school corridor.

A lobby in political life is far from non-descript and unimportant. In fact a lobby can be so important that just the mention of the word can send shivers down the spine of any seasoned politician. Take Mayor Ed Koch for example, the Mayor of New York, a seasoned politician if ever there was one.

INSTINCT

During a visit to Britain last month he praised the role of the security forces in Ulster calling them 'The guardians of the peace'. He said that in the past he had advocated the IRA's call for British troops out of Ulster but now he saw they were there to prevent mass slaughter.

"I do not believe they deserve the castigation that many of us, myself included, heaped upon them".

The mayor was reacting to his instinct on seeing first hand the situation in Ulster. Yet that gut reaction, that first impression was, 24 hours later, to be completely reversed.

"I foolishly used an expression which caused great pain to many Irish Americans. It was an error to say that the British are not an occupying army. The Irish Government should initiate a worldwide campaign to compel the British to leave".

What had led the mayor to change his tune was the Irish lobby back in New York. The influential group that can deliver the block Irish vote that would decide whether Mayor Koch is returned to office or not. The truth has nothing to do with how this puppet politician reaches his opinions. Cast iron facts mean nothing to Mayor Koch. He draws up his conclusions on what he thinks the people of influence would want him to say. Principles, ideology, and the truth are cast out of the window when the lobbies that elect the politicians snap their fingers.

PAWNS AT WESTMINSTER

In Britain we have more than 600 puppet politicians who dance to the tune of a variety of lobbies. Pawns that are pushed around the corridors of Westminster by the faceless financial dictators who secure the existance of these puppets.

The road lobby, the City lobby, the Jewish lobby, the ethnic lobby, the airport lobby, the development lobby and a multitude of others. All pushing their own interests with their hands up the backs of their chosen representatives at Westminster. The welfare of Britain and the British people means nothing to them - just their own vested interests.

No lobby would dictate to National Front politicans at Westminster. The proctection of the environment, the abolition of the Stock Exchange and the dismantling of the multi-racial society, the foundation stones of National Front ideology, would render a multitude of lobbies obsolete.

The string pullers of today's politicans would be left without their puppets. National Front members of Parliament serve only the British people. The welfare, protection and quality of life of the British people being the tramlines of a National Front Government from which no representative can be sidetracked.

• Short Brothers in East Belfast

LOYALISTS FIGHT SHORTS SELL-OFF

ULSTER LOYALISTS are mobilising to resist the latest Tory Government betrayal of British Ulster, this time in the economic, rather than the military, or political, sphere. They intend to fight proposals to carve up East Belfast aircraft and missile maker Shorts and sell it off to foreigners, and to then do the same to the Belfast shipyard Harland and Wolff.

Between them the shipyard and Shorts employ 11% of Ulster's workforce, most of them staunchly Loyalist. After years of struggling, Shorts now has an order book standing at £1046 million, work for the next four years, and the shipyard is set to build a massive luxury liner for an Asian millionaire. But now they look profitable propositions. Thatcher wants to sell them off quick to foreigners. Foreigners who will asset strip out the most short-term profitble bits of the two big Belfast employers and close down the rest, wrecking the economy of the main Loyalist area of Ulster's capital.

Already American giant Boeing and a consortium of Europeans have been sniffing round Shorts, and a British company has offered to buy the profitable missile division separately. An American takeover would be especially unwelcome, because apart from the usual "rationalisation" of redundancies following on from sale to fast-buck-seeking privatisation vultures, there would be the strong likelihood that Loyalists would be fired and Republicans hired at the request of the US Congress, which on Ulster is dominated by the IRA lobby.

The National Front stands foursquare behind the Loyalists of East Belfast in defending their livelihoods from the sell-off sell-out. Shorts and the shipyard belong not to foreign profiteers or even to the British Government but to the workers, the shipbuilders and planemakers, the fitters and stagers and welders and engineers and designers, who create the wealth Thatcher wants to sell off. The shipyard and aircraft factory must be turned over to their workforces as producers' co-operatives, backed by Government aid to get these vital industries on Britain's front-line back on their feet. The profits from a revitalised local ship and aircraft industry should go not to foreign tycoons or into Whitehall coffers but to those who earn the profits by their own hard work, the workers. Through them the wealth they generate should flow out into the local Loyalist community of East Belfast. NO SELL-OFF! NO SELL-OUT! BRITAIN'S FACTORIES BELONG TO BRITAIN'S WORKERS!

Junk Food Promoting a Junk Culture!

• McDonald's epitomises the vile, empty, coca-cola lifestyle pressed upon us by America.

MCDONALDS, THE American hamburger chain have been fined £350 plus £2,800 costs by a Stratford on Avon judge after being taken to court by trading standards officers.

The case related to McDonald's chocolate doughnut which wasn't chocolate at all. The Food Act insists that 'chocolate-coating' should have 31% cocoa in it, McDonald's only had 4.1%.

The case reveals the sort of junk food being pushed by the American firm, and the junk food isn't cheap. Only last month a survey showed that McDonald's chips were double the price per pound of potatoes of those sold in traditional British fish and chip shops.

The British people should boycott McDonalds. The chain of shops epitomises the vile, empty, coco-cola style of life pressed upon us by America financial interests to promote multi-racialism. It is totally alien to Britain and the British way of life and should be rejected by all who hold dear British standards and traditions.

LEGHOLD TRAPS

STOP THIS BARBARIC PRACTICE

WELL DONE! That's what THE FLAG says to Tory minister of Trade, Alan Clarke, after he announced his intention to request the enactment of legislation requiring the labelling of fur garments made from animals trapped in leghold traps.

The labels will state "includes fur from animals commonly caught in leghold traps".

The use of the leg hold trap is banned in the UK and 65 other countries, but is still in widespread use in Canada, the USA nd the Soviet Union.

The Fur Lobby has been quick to respond to the legislation sending letters to all MP's so it is the duty of all nationalists who want an end to this barbaric practice to write to Alan Clark voicing your support.

Alan Clark MP, Minister of Trade, House of Commons, Westminster, London SW1A OAA.

Crime of the Century

SOME WELL-meaning people occasionally find comfort in the futile belief that the Daily Telegraph is "sort of on our side". Anyone cherishing such illusions should shed them now. The Telegraph rates high among our most insidious enemies, especially since it changed hands and became Canadian-owned and edited by a certain Max Hastings.

It is not often that the hacks who ply their dubious craft with the Telegraph display their hand quite so openly as in a recent poisonous fulmination in its leader column which, in the absence of any other attribution, must be accorded to the editor, the aforementioned Max Hastings.

What had aroused Hastings to a veritable paroxysm of fury was the decision of the BBC to allow (yes, allow) the Rev Ian Paisley to feature in the popular radio programme Desert Island Discs. From the welter of hatred and abuse directed at Dr. Paisley emerged the theme that the BBC had been guilty of a grave error of judgement in bestowing on him the accolade of respectability that allegedly goes with an appearance on the programme. The BBC had actually allowed him to present himself as a normal human (well, almost human) being rather than the evil fiend that is the proper role in which anyone that Max Hastings considers to be inconvenient. "What", thundered the editorial, "would have been the reaction had Gerry Adams of Sinn Fein been invited to appear?".

Since I'm not a devotee of the foghorn school of evangelism, I've certainly never been an uncritical admirer of Dr. Paisley. Nevertheless, I've always respected his sincerity and his dogged devotion to a cause that is, incidentally, our cause. To compare this honest Christian with Gerry Adams, the mouthpiece for Murder Incorporated, is the grossest libel and is typical of the "six of one, half dozen of the other" school of thought that is directly responsible for the present situation if Ulster.

This affectation of lofty neutrality: this refusal to distinguish between friend and foe, brother and alien, lies at the root of the problem. The agony of Ulster is their doing. The blood of Ulster is on the hands of such treacherous Wimps.

As a matter of interest, Max Hastings is a former resident of the Irish Republic. Among his publications is listed: "Ulster 1969: the struggle for civil rights in N. Ireland".

Ah yes. Well, anyone who believes that the IRA insurrection was a struggle for civil rights will believe anything. The same may be said for anyone who believes what they read in the Hastings version of the Daily Telegraph.

Time for a Little Treason

THE RECENT spate of murders of British servicemen and civilians by IRA psychopaths has resulted in - wait for it - yet another "crisis meeting" of the British cabinet. Statisticians are divided on the question as to whether this is the thousandth or thousand and first such "crisis meeting". There is no division however, as to what will be the outcome of the latest "crisis meeting" - precisely nothing. Madam Thatcher, that asininely self-styled Iron Lady, will be revealed, yet again, as just another brass phoney.

Of course, various weighty matters were discussed at the "crisis meeting". Should there be internment of swaggering IRA killers, for example? Well, on balance, Tory chaps and girls think not. It would create "martyrs behind the wire" and upset the Americans. It would also make things awkward for Tory fat cats who have large estates in the Irish Republic.

As for the American attitude: surely the experience of New York's mayor Ed Koch demonstrates how much that is worth. Having visited N. Ireland and in a rare, probably unique, moment of honesty declared the British case to be kosher, was forced into humiliating retraction by the enmity of Irish-American blockheads.

As for internment: well, internment is never really the answer to IRA terrorists or those of any other stripe. Interment most certainly is. The identities of most IRA killers is well known to the security forces. The question is not why are they not in custody but why aren't they dead?

There is, of course, the drawback that action against the IRA would "embitter the republican community". What a shame that those whose very existence is treason, and now daily celebrate the murder of British servicemen, should feel embittered. Unlike Russia, here there is no ban on emigration and no doubt we would all favour assisted passages to "embittered republicans", provided they don't come to Britain.

Those with a right to feel embittered are the grieving British parents whose sons are offered up as target practice for IRA phychopaths in order that the British Government may engage in the tawdry political pussyfooting that is its "N. Ireland policy". The Government may not actually wish the deaths of British servicemen but is no doubt fully prepared to accept them without retaliation as part of the process of breaking the spirit of British Loyalists in Ulster. As justification for their failure to act, they drivel on about "the rule of law" - the rule that the IRA does not even acknowledge.

Since treason is all the fashion - and indeed IRA killers and other "embittered republicans" talk of very little else as they stroll to the Post Office to cash their social security cheques - perhaps a mere Englishman may be allowed to talk a little treason on his own account.

I suggest that the British Army should down tools and refuse duty until the British Government declares war on the IRA who so long ago declared war on us. As long as the IRA are allowed to roam free and kill at will, the Army should repeat one of its most glorious actions and stage another Curragh Mutiny.

The Biter Bit

ONE OF the sternest critics of S. Africa's refusal to hand over the country to primitive black tribesmen is Mr. David Lange, Socialist Frime Minister of New Zealand. Always in the forefront of boycott campaigns; ever leading the chorus demanding trade sanctions; the plump and flabby Lange gained power in N.Zealand largely by winning the Maori vote on the promise of redressing their grievances.

Having deliberately heightened Maori awareness of these ancient grievances, Lange has discovered that the Maori demands are rather larger than he had anticipated. Various Maori tribes are at present laying claim to about 70% of N. Zealand's land area and the majority of its fishing rights solely for their exclusive use. And they are turning nasty (or nastier) in the process. Maori gangs are now regularly responsible for attacks on Whites. Maoris are also responsible for the bulk of the crime in N. Zealand, particularly crimes of violence. Fifty percent of the prison population is Maori. Since they comprise only 12% of N. Zealand's population this means that they are more than seven times as likely to wind up in the jug.

These sort of statistics have a rather familiar ring. They are, in fact, very similar to those that apply to every other multi-racial society - the kind that Lange so ardently advocates.

White New Zealanders have become exceedingly alarmed at the outcome of Lange's multi-racial experiment and are emigrating in large numbers - mainly to Australia, which surely proves how desperate they are.

But Maoris are not merely laying claim to most of N. Zealand. You may have read that they have also laid claim to a shrunken Maori head recently offered for sale at auction in England.

No doubt most White N. Zealanders would be happy to offer them compensation in the shape of a shrunken brain - namely that of Mr. David Lange.

Thatcher's Ambition Thwarted

THERE WAS a time when it seemed that Madam Thatcher hankered after becoming the first President of a United States of Europe. Certainly she seemed to believe that she could dominate the European leaders by the sheer force of her personality just as she does the Tory wimps in her own cabinet.

Time after time she departed for EEC "summit conferences" to take the accompaniment of a barrage of bombast about how she was going to shake the Common market to its very foundations and win back Britain's vastly inequitable share of that bloated organisations costs. Time after time she returned chastened with tiny token refund, like the child at a fairground cocunut shy who failed to hit the target and was given a consolation lollipop.

Clearly the other European leaders do not share the enormous admiration that Madam Thatcher has for herself. So she is unlikely to be the first President of the United States of Europe, which may have led her to declare that it would never come into being - which had a somewhat hollow ring at the very time when the British passport, the very symbol of national sovereignty, was abandoned and substituted by EEC documentation.

Another hint of her delusions of grandeur is her recent extraordinary Commonwealth tour - the kind that is usually carried out by the Head of State, not by a serving party politician. She had even arranged to undertake "walkabouts" in order that she might be adored by the populace. Unfortunately, the populace seemed somewhat disinclined to join in the adoration of the Maggie. The reception in most places was cool but mildly friendly although her hosts were generally mystified as to why she had come anyway.

So it seems that she is unlikely to become a sort of surrogate Queen Empress.

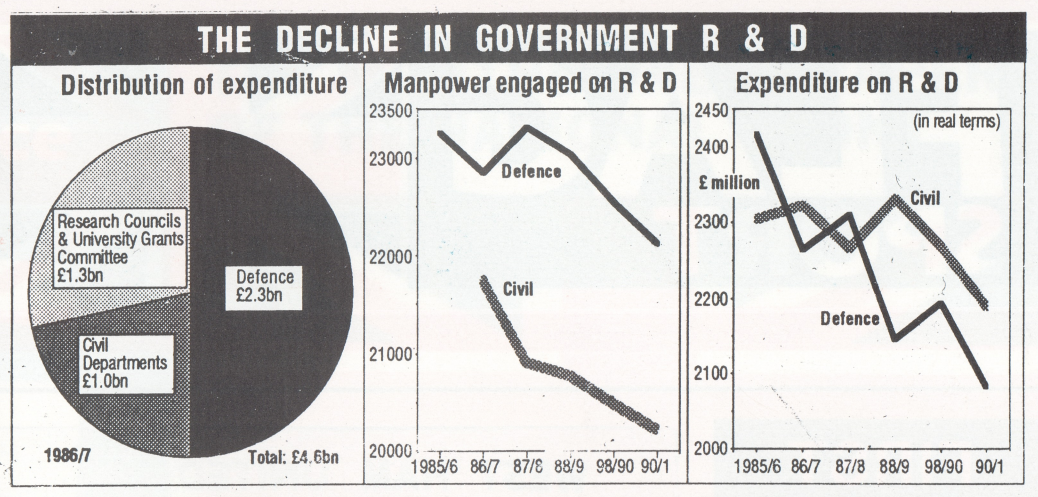
Well then, just what is she to do when she finally quits, or is removed from, the political scene?

A clue may be found in her strange decision to become embroiled in a current religious controversy; the ordination of women as priests in the Anglican church. She has declared herself to be in favour of ordination.

What can this mean? Does she have a plan to take over as Archbishop of Canterbury?

There is a problem you see. There's already an old woman in residence.

WHITEHALL CHOPS BRITISH BRAINPOWER



THE EXTENT to which British brainpower, generated by the world's best scientists, technologists, engineers and inventors, is being wasted by Government meaness emerged with the publication recently of the official 1988 Annual Review of Government funded Research and Development.

It shows that the underfunding of British brainpower is bad, and is going to get worse. As British inventions flow in a steady stream overseas, costing us billions a year, for want of development funding, the Government is going to cut its research funding from £4,725 million in 1985-86 to £4,273 million in 1990-91. Over the same period Government research manpower will be axed from 56,400 to 42,369. The 14,000 fired boffins, the cream of our country's brains, will probably follow thousands of others abroad.

Government research spending, crucial to our national security in an era of ever-more technological warfare, will be slashed by 8% betwen 1987 and 1990. Over the same period, defence research by civilian firms will be cut by 5.7%

Private industry isn't, the report reveals, doing any better at harnessing Britain's brains that the Government. Between 1981 and 1986, the number of research and development boffins employed in the industry fell from 195,000 to 174,000. In real terms, industry research spending has steadily fallen since 1975 in such key areas as mechanical and electrical engineering, oil, gas and electricity utilisation. Since 1967, the official report revealed, British research and development has been notable for a steady decline in the numbers employed doing it and a steady increase in the proportion funded from abroad, whose fruits will benefit foreigners.

Compared to those foreigners, we are lagging well behind in both Government and industrial funding of research. Britian's Government spent, in 1986, 0.62% of the nation's wealth on Research and Development. Sweden spends 0.9%, France 0.95% and West Germany 0.97%. British industry likewise lags behind industry in countries like Sweden, Japan and West Germany.

The position in pure scientific research, the wellspring of new technology in the longer term is just as bad. The week before the 1988 Annual Review was published, the Advisory Board for Research Councils, which advises the Government on pure science spending, revealed that between now and the financial year 1990-91 the Government plans a 3% cut in funding even though the national wealth from which funds come is forecast to increase by 8% over the same period.

No wonder Britain lags behind. No wonder our brightest brains, despite often being deeply patriotic, are forced in the end to go and work abroad where their skills are appreciated. How many more jet planes, computers, and other British inventions, like the liquid crystal display on your wristwatch, patented in 1972 by Hull University and the Royal Signals and Radar Establishment but now produced to the tune of billions of dollars a year by the Japanese and Americans, will Britain end up importing from abroad because the Government is too mean to fund them?

Only one political party is committted to backing British brainpower wholeheartedly. Only one British political party will give our best minds money to blossom and bear fruit. Only one British political party will put Britain where she used to be, ahead of the world in science and technology not only in theory but in practical application. That party is the National Front.

TORY POLICIES DIVIDE BRITAIN

by Steve Brady

BECAUSE YUPPIES commuting to the City and buying second homes in the country have pushed house prices in the area to insane heights, many ordinary local people in South Eastern England can't even afford a one-bedroom flat. And Tory cuts in council housing are forcing South East families to squeeze into overcrowded parents' homes or move out of areas their people have lived in for generations, leaving more room for the yuppies and rich Immigrants.

That's the grim picture painted by a report commissioned by the Tory-controlled Association of District Councils from a group of Bristol University researchers.

The report, published on August 8th, showed that nearly half of all families at work in the South-East cannot afford to buy their first home because of the Tories' property boom. While in the North 98% of working families can do so. In Surrey, 54% of working families do not earn enough to buy a 700 square foot starter home, such as a small one-bedroom flat. In East Sussex, this proportion is 52%, in Greater London and Oxfordshire 46% and in Essex, Bucks and Herts 42%. These figures have all increased dramatically since the property boom, admitted the Tory Association who had the report produced.

With privately-rented property at reasonable rents all but extinct, local families turn to the Council for a home in their own area. But Tory Councils which predominate in the South East have sold off much of their housing stocks. Elmbridge in Surrey, for example, has sold off 1600 of its houses, leaving it with 5500 council houses and a waiting list of 1600. Neighbouring Mole Valley has sold 1200 and now has 4800 and a waiting list including 500 homeless old folk and 390 homeless families.

Many older local people who do own their own homes in the South-East admit they could never afford to buy them, or anywhere else, at today's ludicrously inflated prices. Their children as they grow up have nowhere to live. Many move out of the area, leaving a drastic labour shortage of factory, shop and other workers not paid yuppies wages.

This situation where local communities cannot afford to live in their own areas and Britain is divided into a South with plenty of jobs but no affordable homes and a North with lots of affordable homes but no jobs is a sick farce. It is a direct result of the Tory dream of unfetteed market forces and ruthless selfish greed as the highest power in the land. Labour's "alternative" is roaring inflation and ruin for all. Only the National Front has a way out.

We believe that every British familiy has a fundamental, basic right to a decent home in their own area. To that end, we will expand housing stocks available to councils for short-term housing. In the medium term, we will force house prices back into the realms of affordable reality. The price of a house ought to be the cost of land, materials and labour plus a reasonable, fair profit for the builder, not some vast figure cobbled out of thin air by rapacious estate agents and overpaid yuppies and sustained by a corrupt racket. We will impose price controls to restore reality. We will also ban second homes in areas where local people are in need of first homes. Thatcher's "Revolution" has divided Britain into the jobless and the homeless. Our National Revolution will bring jobs and homes for all, in their own local communities.

• House Prices: They should be the cost of the land, materials and labour plus a reasonable profit for the builder.

BLACK GELD

GIVE IMMIGRANTS more money or there will be riots! That's the message from Bath Black Activist Maqsood Zamir to his local council.

"Without the proper responses from the local authorities Bath could experience civil disturbances like in other inner cities" he said.

Zamir claimed that unrest is growing because of the economic difficulties faced by ethnic minorities living in the city and lack of cultural support.

Minstrels in the Gallery

Music Review by Bob Nash

IT'S TWENTY years since Jethro Tull first appeared on the British music scene; and it seemed fitting that Ian Anderson and his merry men should celebrate this anniversary in a British concert hall.

The band's Wembley Arena concert on Tuesday 19th July had been eagerly awaited by British fans and they were not to be disappointed.

Leaping from a wheelchair prop at the start of the show to sing 'Cross eyed Mary' from the Aqualung album, Ian and the band got quickly into full swing.

As befitted the theme of the concert, Jethro Tull played a variety of songs spanning the whole of their twenty year history. Very early Tull songs included in the set were 'A New Day Yesterday' from 1968 and 'Fatman' which included the appearance of original Jethro Tull drummer Clive Bunker leading a rather amusing massed Bongo Solo. An edited version of the ever popular 'Thick As A Brick', was also played to a suitably estatic audience; whilst the cheers that went up for new songs such as 'Steel Monkey', 'Farm On The Freeway' and 'Budapest' from the band's most recent album 'Crest Of A Knave' show that Jethro Tull have earned for themselves a new generation of fans, whilst still retaining their old following.

Martin Barre's guitar solo spot was unique in that rather than adopt the tedious posing plus fast playing routine of many lead guitarists, he instead played instrumental versions of some of the Tull songs that he had co-writted the music for, such as: 'Pibroch (Cap in Hand)', 'Pusseywillow' and 'Seal Driver', and thereby entertained rather than bored his audience.

Finally encoring with 'Aqualung' and 'Locomotive Breath', the band showed us once more what great musical ability and class they possess. A style of music that so easily overshadows the rubbish to be found in much of the popular singles charts.

Here's to the next twenty years of Jethro Tull!

Second Summer Camp Success!

THE SECOND South-West Summer Camp of the year took place in Devon over the weekend of August 5th and 6th.

The two days under canvas saw members from as far away as the East Midlands join with local activists in an idylic spot just outside Torbay.

Barbeques, games, patriotic music and sampling the local scrumpy was the order of the weekend as comradeship between members was secured and the future goals of the NF discussed.

Thanks must go to Torbay organiser, Mark Cotterill, for his hard work in making sure the proceedings were enjoyed by all.

FIRST SALE OF THE NEW SEASON

NEWHAM NATIONAL Front kicked off their paperselling season at Upton Park, the home of West Ham United, on Sunday 21st August.

The Hammers were at home to Tottenham Hotspurs in a pre-season friendly and the NF paper sellers had an excellent response from the 95% White, West Ham supporters.

Make sure your National Front branch is making a regular visit to sell papers at your local team's ground.

Thatcher's Hooligans

ON 8TH August a gang of hooligans caused mayhem in a French town - they hurled food at a table of VIPs, threw a photographer in a swimming pool, looted a hotel bar and vandalised a hotel's gate.

Now Mrs Thatcher has noticeably failed to say anything about this incident, perhaps because the hooligans were not supporters of a football team. They were members of the Oxford University Rowing Club, whose membership is renown for its high number of young Conservatives!

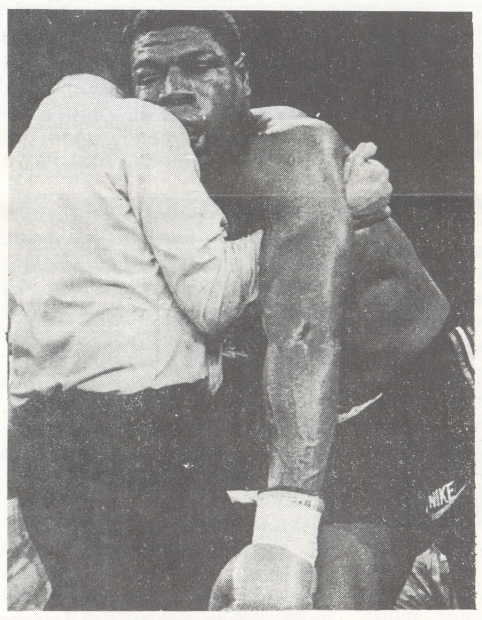
STOP THIS CRUELTY

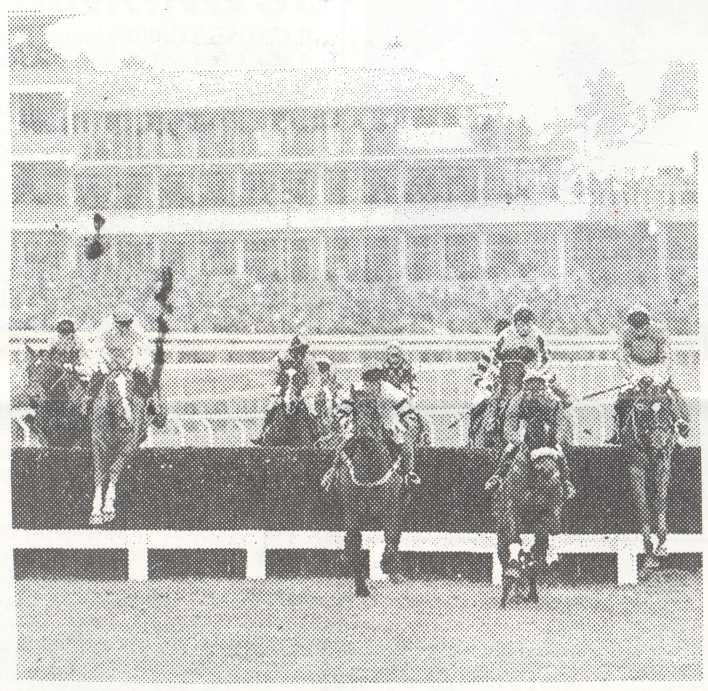


THEY said it could never happen again. They said that British people would never ever again have to witness such scenes of slaughter.

But during October poor Frank Bruno will be wheeled out again to be butchered by Mike Tyson just so that the parasites and leeches who feed off the huge West Indian can make money.

Whales, seals, foxes and the like are slaughtered for their commercial value now Frank Bruno faces the same fate.

Mis-matches like Bruno-Tyson give ammunition to those who want to see a ban on boxing. It is exploitation of the worst kind. After seeing Bruno slaughtered by Witherspoon, who would have thought Frank would have been used again in such a mercenary manner. He deserves better . . . such as a holiday for a lifetime back in the Caribbean!



OVER THE STICKS

with our Racing Correspondent

THE FLAG's Flat Racing season has come to an end. The disastrous run of 'donkeys' tipped by our racing correspondent received a welcome respite when Dismiss, who he told us would set up a sequence of wins, finally obliged at rewarding odds of 8-1 and 9-2.

Its over the sticks now, and our man is confident that he can put the barren summer months behind him and give the FLAG readers a prosperous autumn.

AT LAST: A WINNING ENGLAND TEST SIDE!

• England's National Lacrosse Team

AN ENGLAND national side recently came back from a tour of the U.S.A. having trounced the Americans 3-0 in a test series.

In the final game they trailed 1-4 at half time and had to fight back to win 6-5. The sport, which is reputed to have been invented by the Algonquin Indian Tribe of Canada, is now played by more than 60,000 women in England.

The sport is lacrosse - and you might notice something else in the picture which makes a refreshing change these days.

Grabbing the Beer Money

THE ABILITY of the Football League clubs to shoot themselves in the foot is stunning. Despite all the problems of the last couple of years and the increasing level of alcohol-related violence, nearly a quarter of the 92 league clubs will be sponsored by breweries this season.

Is this really the sort of image that football club chairman want to present to their young fans, or is it a case of grab the money and to hell with the consequences.

Before it's too late . . .

BAN OVERSEAS PLAYERS FROM COUNTY CRICKET

GIVE OUR HOME-GROWN CRICKETERS THEIR CHANCE!

• Micky Stewart: Demanding changes in the best interests of English cricket.

ENGLAND CRICKET team manager, Micky Stewart, hit the nail on the head when he blamed the debacle of England's Test team at the hands of the West Indians on the influx of overseas players in British county teams.

It's ridiculous that counties should employ, train and encourage, overseas players during our summer in place of young English hopefuls who with the same help could develop into formidable test players.

The FLAG says ban all overseas players playing for English counties. These teams should be made up of English men born and bred in those counties and not foreign players who can be lured by financial incentives which would be better spent on training home-grown talent.

Micky Stewart is right. His comments should receive wholehearted support from all those who wish to see English cricket prosper.

• Malcolm Marshall: His appearances for Hampshire have denied young English players the opportunity.
